

Everything Avielevate does, on one page

A DGCA CPL preparation platform built around one loop: take a test, see exactly where you are losing marks, drill that. Six papers, timed mock exams under real conditions, and analytics that tell you what to study next rather than just what you scored.

WHILE TESTING

The six papers

One account covers all of them. Every question is filed against the syllabus chapter it belongs to, so a weak area is a chapter you can drill, not a vague feeling.

How you practise

Three modes, because learning a topic and rehearsing an exam are different jobs.

Study Mode

Answer, see immediately whether you were right, and read the full reasoning before moving on. No clock, no pressure.

Review Mode

The answer is marked from the start. For the night before, when you want to read the bank rather than be tested by it.

Exam Mode

Fixed question count against a running clock, on each paper's structure — 70% to pass, no negative marking. Optional integrity mode goes full-screen and logs tab switches, so you rehearse the conditions as well as the content.

Build your own

Filter by chapter, by question type, by what you flagged, by what you got wrong before, or by what other students reported seeing in a real sitting.

What makes it different

Most question banks tell you a percentage. These four tell you what to do about it.

Confidence check

One optional tap per question — Sure / Not sure / Guessed. Your report then separates a mark you earned from one you got lucky on, and flags the worst case: confident and wrong. Nothing feels wrong about a misconception, which is exactly why it survives to exam day.

Spaced repetition

Questions you miss come back on their own — tomorrow, then 3 days, a week, a fortnight, a month — until you have genuinely got them. Answer one right while guessing and it does not move further out.

Weak-topic analytics

Accuracy per chapter, time per question, and where the marks actually went — labelled by what was measured, never by a guess about why.

Sky, the tutor

An AI tutor scoped to the question in front of you and nothing else, so it explains rather than wanders. Disabled in Exam Mode, enforced server-side.

Everything around the practice

Notes & cheat sheet

Write a note against any question; read them back grouped by paper and print the lot the night before.

Study planner

A calendar with tasks and your DGCA exam date — and an email the evening before your paper.

Saved & shared tests

Every attempt kept, with its report. Share a test with a classmate.

Study material

Reference documents per subject, alongside the bank.

Community

WhatsApp, Discord and Instagram — people sitting the same six papers, some ahead of you, some behind.

Report a bad question

A wrong answer key is the worst thing a bank can do to a candidate. Report one in two taps and it reaches a moderator with the question attached.

Previous papers · soon

Past DGCA sittings, rebuilt as timed papers.
Reworded by us, so nothing reproduces anyone else's copyrighted text.

For academies

An instructor console showing your students' progress — scores and completion, never their private notes or contact details.

Three months free, while we are testing

Nobody is being charged and there is no checkout. We are building this with students rather than at them, and we need people testing it and telling us what is wrong.

1. Sign up at avielevate.com with your genuine details.
2. Fill in the short form linked from the pricing page, using the same email and username.
3. Once we verify the account, three months of full access is switched on.

Never put your password in the form. We only need your registered details to find the right account — nobody from Avielevate will ever ask for a password, an OTP or a payment.

In return: tell us what is broken, report a wrong answer key or a confusing explanation, mark questions you genuinely remember from a DGCA sitting, and say what would make preparation easier.

Avielevate is a preparation tool. Always study alongside the official DGCA publications and the approved reference material for your course.
